

DONOR SPOTLIGHT: BLAIR & MARGIT BRANDT

To the Brandts, supporting GLAZER HALL is about investing in the cultural epicenter of Palm Beach. They understand that performing arts brings people together for inspiration, perspective, and escape.

The Brandt's commitment continues a family legacy of arts leadership in South Florida, building on previous generations who helped found the Kravis Center for the Performing Arts and the Alexander W. Dreyfoos School of the Arts, where the Brandt Black Box Theater now bears their name.

Blair, along with his wife Margit, who is one of the most prestigious and fastest-growing real estate operators on Palm Beach island, are passionate about ensuring the arts remain accessible to future generations, particularly through family-friendly programming. Their support for the planter that bears their name on the Waterview Terrace at GLAZER HALL reflects their vision for families and visitors.

"Jill and Avie had a vision for GLAZER HALL that was the perfect encapsulation of the best path forward for Palm Beach: a world in which we can grow vibrantly as a premier destination, while also honoring our incredible history, places, and landmarks. The restoration and updates to this beautiful building on the waterfront is the ideal home for the next generation of performing arts - all right here on the island."

— Blair & Margit Brandt

"We are deeply grateful for Blair and Margit's commitment to GLAZER HALL. As dedicated champions of Palm Beach and the arts, their advocacy has been instrumental in welcoming new residents to our community and sharing our mission."

— Allison Stockel, GLAZER HALL Executive Director